Favre captures 82% vote to win landslide victory

There was no holding back the smiles of satisfaction by Bay St. Louis mayor-elect Edward Favre as he was announced the victor in Tuesday's general

Favre, the Democratic nominee, who has been rather emotionally reserved during the campaign, received 82 percent of the votes cast for mayor in his landslide victory.

Favre received 1,541 votes to Republican Martin Morreale's 345, and the victor was all smiles as he was congratulated by family, relatives and friends.

Morreale was among the first to congratulate Favre. Both

The fire that destroyed the large barn on Dr. Marion Dodson's farm off Lower Bay Road probably was due to spontaneous combustion, according to Hancock County Fire Marshal Jay Marsh.

According to Albinus Zoerner of BaySide Fire Department, the barn contained 750 1,500 pound rolls of hay.

"Moist hay stacked like that will catch fire as quick as anything. It happens all the time. And a hay fire is one you can't put out," Marsh said.

The firefighters used all the water they had and then got more, but were not able to save the barn, Marsh said.

A major concern was that the fire would spread into an adjoining grassy area and threaten the houses in BaySide Park, according to Zoerner.

State Forestry Service equipment which usually is called in to cut fire lanes in emergency situations, were not available to assist with the fire, Zoerner Zoerner approached the Hancock County Board of Supervisors Monday asking them to authorize the use of county equipment when other equipment is unavailable.

The supervisors agreed to the

The barn contained a bulldozer, a truck and a feeder truck. One of Dobson's employees was able to save the bulldozer, according to Marsh.

A fire lane eventually was cut and the firefighters allowed the fire to burn itself out.

According to Marsh the hay continued to burn Monday morning.

Favre has served as Bay St Louis' city clerk-clerk of council for the past eight years and will take office on July 1.

The new mayor will serve with James A. (Jimmy) Rutherford, as councilman at large, Charles C. Scianna, District One; James C. (Jim) Thriffiley III, District Two; Thomas (Tom) Farve, District Three; and John W. Wilkerson, District Four councilmen. The councilmen were all unopposed in the general election.

Thomas Farve will be the only new face on the council as the other four were reelected Rutherford and Scianna were elected in January, 1989 in special elections to replace Wilmer Seymour and Lisa Cowand who now serve as Hancock County Supervisor.

Favre said, "During the next 3½ weeks we will be putting our plans together so come July 1 we can hit the ground running and never look back.

Three teenagers required hospital treatment following a two-car accident on Old Spanish Trail Saturday evening.

About 8:45 p.m., sixteenyear-old Wade Weidman of Waveland exited Chiniche Street onto Old Spanish Trail and was making a U-turn back into Chiniche when his 1982 Chevrolet was struck by William Barbetta, according to Bay Police Patrolman E.J. Favre.

Barbetta thought Weidman was going to stay in the righthand lane and tried to pass him. When Weidman turned to go back into Chiniche the cars struck each other near their front ends, Favre said.

Barbetta's 1962 Volkswagen ~Beetle then collided with a street sign, stopping just short of a chain-link fence. Weidman's car stopped slightly ahead of Barbetta's, inches before striking a large political Barbetta was transported to

Memorial Hospital in Gulfport where he underwent plastic surgery for lacerations to the face, Favre said. Two passengers in Barbetta's car, Jerry Brady, 18, and Shea

Evans, 16, were treated and released at Hancock Medical Center.

According to Favre, Barbetta and his passengers were returning home from a wedding reception but alcohol was not a factor in the accident.

"Barbetta volunteered to take a breath test and it came back absolutely zero," Favre

Neither Weidman nor a passenger in his car were injured. No citations were issued in the accident, according to

Medical association warns of dangers under sun

Summertime fun, with trips to the lake, beach and picnic spots are family favorites during the summer. But the Mississippi State Medical Association advises that sun and water can be hazardous, especially to babies and toddlers.

The sun is one of the most underestimated dangers to children's skin, and overexposure to the sun is damaging to an adult's skin as well.

It takes a child a few years to build up resistance to the sun's rays, so it is best to let very young children take just a few minutes of sunning at first, being careful to let the child wear a sun hat to protect the head and eyes from the sun.

Children will probably enjoy adding the discovery of water to the experience. By practicing common sense, one can make the first time to the lake or beach a happy memory for youngsters.

Be patient when introducing a child to the water by letting him observe the bathing scene for a while, then try a little splashing together.

Eventually move to sitting down in the water with your child and letting the water lap at your bodies. A child can probably go from being fearful of the

USM polymer scientists receive $763,000 grant

By Roger Brinegar Two polymer scientists at the University of Southern Mississippi have received a research grant of more than 760,000 from the U.S. Navy to develop a "super slippery" polymer coating, which will allow ships to ply the world's oceans with less nautical friction.

The three-year, 763,600 Navy grant was announced May 4 by U.S. Senators Thad Cochran and Trent Lott who characterized the award as "significant for the advancement of the polymer science program"

A matching grant of $95,000 provided by the university will bring total funding for the Navy

"We are very pleased that the Navy has chosen our polymer program and the expertise of our faculty for this most important research effort," said Dr. David Huffma:, dean of the College of Science and Technology at USM.

Drs. Charles McCormick and Roger Hester, USM professors of polymer science, will head the research for the study, which will involve a number of graduate students in both the research and development phases of the project.

"In this grant we are going to study the effect of polymers on reducing friction, particularly on naval vessels," McCormick said. "The idea is to develop a slippery surface that will allow these vessels to move through the water in a more efficient manner and with fuel savings." McCormick said some small fish escape from predators by secreting a mucus, which is a naturally-occurring polymer, to make them move faster.

Fresh

"What we would like to do in this project is mimic the effects of mother nature by making a synthetic polymer," McCormick

During the past few years, McCormick, Hester and other polymer science faculty members-including scores of USM graduate students—have been involved in several research projects with strategic implications such as "enhanced" oil recovery methods and polymer applications in agriculture.

"These are exciting times," McCormick said. "We should provide our young people with the latest tools and concepts, and we must instill enthusiasm and creativity. The Navy grant and those on agricultural and petroleum applications are of strategic importance to our region, and we want Mississippians to know what we can achieve."

The researchers said much of the high technology research for the Navy project will be conducted in state-of-the-art laboratories in the university's $17 million Polymer Science Research Facility now under construction on the USM campus. The three-story, 86,000 square foot building is expected to open at the beginning of the fall semester 1990.

ASSEMBLY LINE—Some 10 Hancock County trustees were busy in the Criminal Justice Facility's kitchen Wednesday peeling shrimp to be used to supplement the jail's menu. The shrimp were caught with a confiscated boat operated by Capt. Jim Odom, jail administrator, and two trustees. Lt. Strong winds changed the ideas of several shrimpers on Monday, but those who braved the elements reportedly came in with nice catches.

We know many shrimp were headed for freezers for future use.

We hope the catch will continue to be good for many weeks to come.

The Hancock County sheriff's shrimping boat did not go out until Tuesday and some 120 pounds of shrimp were caught in a few hours.

Capt. Jim Odom, jail administrator, operates the boat with two trustees, and Wednesday's catch was up to 150 pounds and more shrimp are expected in the days

Trustees were busy Wednesday morning peeling shrimp to be frozen for use in the jail's meals.

This will help supplement the cost of food for inmates at the facility which already uses many produce items from the county farm.

We wish everyone luck at catching shrimp.

WASHINGTON REPORT

Senator urges support for NASA's rocket program

Senator Thad Cochran has urged a Senate panel to fully support the NASA program which would bring hundreds of new jobs to two areas of Mississippi.

His remarks came in a statement to the Senate subcommittee reviewing a report by the Aerospace Safety Adviory Panel on NASA's Advanced Solid Rocket Motor Program, which will involve production and testing at two Mississippi sites-Yellow Creek in Northeast Mississippi and Hancock County on the Gulf Coast.

"I am pleased that NASA has designated two sites in the state for production and testing of the advanced solid rocket motors,' Cochran stated. "This program will provide more than 1,700 jobs in a region where unemployment is higher and income levels are lower than most other regions of the United States.

Despite the benefits this program would bring to my state, I recognize that the development of the ASRM is essential, in a broader view, to the fulfillment of our national goal of U.S. leadership in space." Cochran cited three successful shuttle programs launched since last September as "magnificent accomplishments" that will support future missions. Pointing to the leadership of Admiral Richard Truly, a native Mississippian who is administrator of NASA, the senator said, "The NASA team that led America back into space has determined that the ASRM is critical for making improvements which will allow our space program to move forward. Last year, Congress agreed by endorsing the ASRM program and appropriating funds for its implementation.

"If America is going to continue the progress we have made toward rebuilding our space program, it is vital that Congress provide NASA with the necessary resources to improve reliability, safety and performance of space flight systems," he told the Senate Subcommittee on Science, Technology and space. His Mississippi colleagues, Sen. Trent Lott is a member of the panel.

Mabus to seek public input on education reform for state

GEE....I

EYESS NOT

Is Gov. Ray Mabus going to try to duplicate the Christmas Miracle of 1982?

The Christmas Miracle as most Mississippians recall was the surprise passage of the Education Reform Act just a few days before Christmas in December, 1982.

When then Gov. William Winter called lawmakers into special session Dec. 6, 1982 to consider his education package of which public kindergartens were the centerpiece, he was roundly criticized by legislators and some others for bad timing since the regular session was only a little over three weeks

As it turned out, having the lawmakers in special session under the gun with the onset of Christmas became a masterful piece of strategy on Winter's part in getting the recalcitrant Legislature to produce a program.

It is obvious in hindsight that what occurred in that twoweek-long special session under the public glare of a single-issue could not have happened in a regular session,

Also some of us-I was oneback then miscalculated the impact Winter's pre-session series of education forums and public speakings mobilized by his staff (Mabus being one of them) would have on the Legislature, unaccustomed as it was to being moved by pep rallies. When the gallaries of the Legislature filled up every day with kindergarten backers and lawmakers were besieged with telephone calls and letters in support of the education package, they finally began to realize the depth of public support for the program.

Not to be underestimated too was the hard-hitting editorial support of the education package by the Clarion-Ledger, which hammered away at lawmakers who opposed it. It took all of that to put the

Education Reform Act on the books, and to provide the $110 million in new taxes needed to fund the program. Now Mabus is hoping to write a new chapter in the long struggle for quality education in Mississippi by enacting Education Reform Act II.

Mabus contends that while the 1982 act did much to move Mississippi toward the national educational mainstream, the state can't be content with resting on what has been accomplished thus far.

Last week, Mabus launched his campaign for new education initiatives in an impassioned speech to a statewide meeting of certified public accountants, a precursor of a massive speaking campaign by the governor and his staff to build grass-roots support for his proposals. For the next three months, Mabus administration forces will be hitting the road to get public input on the reforms he believes are needed in education. Out of his canvassing of the state, Mabus will come up with his package of proposals to present to the Legislature.

So far, the young governor has not dealt in specific reforms, or said if he will call the Legislature into special session to consider the package, or will put it into the 1990 regular session.

There had been earlier indications that Mabus might be planning_on a September or October special session to tackle his new education reforms But Mabus could very well take a leaf out of William Winter's book and call the lawmakers to town in December with the hope that Education Reform Act II will fare as well as its predecessor did in the pre-Christmas 1982 special session.

My own guess is that Mabus will shoot for December, using the two months beforehand to wage full-fledged PR campaign to garner public support for his program, much on the order of the 1982 buildup.

So far, Mabus has put no dollar amounts on what he will propose, but early estimates put the figure in the neighborhood of $150 to $200 million.

In any case, lawmakers are expecting a tax increase to be a necessary part of the package. Mabus, who ran on a no-taxincrease platform in 1987, last week came closer than he has since becoming governor to admitting he will have to seek a tax hike.

The present mood of the Legislature seems to be one of taking Mabus at his word in the 1987 campaign, that no new taxes were needed.

He's going to have a very tough job selling the package to the lawmakers. It might take another miracle.

By November, the city will have about $145,000 in Federal Urban Aid funds available for work on streets meeting specific criteria, including two 11-foot lanes with two-foot shoulders and a specific slope, Eaton said.

The board is considering whether to use that money, which could cover 75 percent of the cost of an approved project, or let it continue to accumulate while using city funds for work on major traffic arteries like Waveland and Nicholson Avenues.

Eaton said the city might have to obtain additional easements or get exceptions to some of the slope and width requirements to use the federal funds because most of the city's streets are not wide enough to meet the criteria.

The matter has been temporarily turned over to Eaton, who will join the workshop to help the aldermen decide which streets need the most work and how the money available can best be used.

What to choose from the displays of so many kinds of vegetables is often a difficult decision. When possible, make your own selection of perishable produce, keeping in mind your intended purpose.

Look first for freshness. Choose vegetables that are comparatively dry. Excessive moisture hastens decay.

Do not buy merely because the price is low. Unless the low price is because of overabundance of the product the socalled "bargain" may be undesirable.

Avoid selections showing excessive deterioration. Frequently, such off-quality stock will be lower in price, but if you waste a lot in preparation you haven't gained anything by getting it at a low price.

Remember, the largest is now always the best quality nor the most economical. They may appear to be bargains but may be entirely unsuited for the purpose.

Distinguish between defects that affect appearance and those that affect edible quality. Higher grade vegetables usually don't have blemishes that are present in lower grades. You can remove many blemishes that are not harmful to the interior quality.

Do not handle vegetables unnecessarily. Rough handling of vegetables in the process of selection causes spoilage and waste for which consumers as a group must pay. When you handle a vegetable to better judge quality or condition, use reasonably thoughtful care to prevent injury.

Even under ideal storage conditions—the right temperature and humidity—most fresh vegetables retain top quality only for a few days.

Green leafy vegetables quickly wilt and change flavor as water evaporates from tissues. Other vegetables-corn, beans and peas lose sweetness within a short time as sugar converts to starch.

Most fresh green vegetables keep well and stay crisp if put in covered containers or plastic bags and stored in the refrigerator. If you wash lettuce, celery and other leafy vegetables before storing, drain thoroughly because too much moisture can hasten decay.

Always sort vegetables before storing. Discard or use, at once, any bruised or soft vegetables; do not store them with sound, firm vegetables.

The nutritive value of vegetables is not measured by their cost or the quantity you bring home, but on the amount that is actually eaten and the nutrients this portion contains. Factors favorable to conserving nutrients are: 1) rapid harvesting, cooling, packing, transporting and marketing; 2) early consumption of purchased produce;

3) use of properly controlled temperatures and humidity until the food is served; 4) avoidance of soaking in water; 5) rapid cooking; 6) use of liquids in which vegetables are cooking; 7) conservatism in paring, coring, chopping and mashing; and 8) preparing amounts fairly close to what will be consumed so there are not large quantities of leftovers.

Fresh vegetables are at home for most any occasion. The "in" hors d'oeuvres at parties these days are cherry tomatoes, colery stalks, little green onions. circles of green pepper, sliced fresh mushrooms, carrot sticks. flowerettes of cauliflower and broccoli, and for the brave, brave soul, hot little chili peppers. Try them! You will find that fresh vegetables are nutritious, they taste good and are easy to prepare.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

As the temperature soars these summer days, and the mere thought of the kitchen stove makes you even hotter, take the comparatively easy way out, and turn your thoughts to chicken.

It's such versatile and relatively 'short cut' cookery and delicious in so many ways. Sometimes I quickly saute chicken breasts with a bit of lemon and chopped parsley, but more often I saute chicken quarters in oil or butter, or a combination of the two, adding splashes of white wine or sherry, along with lemon slices and other seasonings.

At other times, I like to add chopped fresh tomatoes and chopped green pepers and onions and sliced mushrooms to the basic chicken saute-after all, it doesn't take that much more time to add these embellishments, and they readily add a flair to the finished dish.

And, at times I add green grapes to the chicken-lemonbutter combination at the last minute, or cherries or peaches or avocado slices, just for the fun and the colorful appearance of the dish. For a basic saute, on which you can improvise further touches as you go along,

SHERRY AND LEMON CHICKEN SPECIAL 1 broiler-fryer, 21/2 to 3 lbs.,

1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter or margarine

2/3 to 1 cup sherry 1 lemon, sliced (less, if you don't like as much lemon as I do) Several grindings of the pepper mill, or coarse-ground black pepper to taste

1 medium onion, chopped 2 Tblsp. fresh parsley, chopped

Salt if desired

Melt the butter or margarine. and saute the chicken quarters, browning them nicely, and turning as needed.

Distribute the onion slices atop, dust generously with the pepper, and splash the sherry over it all.

Simmer until the chicken is tender, adding the parsley and a dash of crumbled rosemary, if you wish, and a little water if needed. Add a dash of salt if you

I usually cover the pan as the chicken starts to simmer, removing he cover as needed to reduce the liquid a bit, if necessary. Serve with new potatoes and fresh green beans or pole

Warm weather increases salmonella dangers

The weather is warmer and our activities turn to the outdoors. Picnics and family cookouts become a weekend way of life. The pleasant days, warm temperatures and plenty of food combine to create the perfect breeding ground for salmonella, reminds the Mississippi State Medical Association.

Salmonella is one of the most common foodborne illnesses and is estimated to affect more than one million persons each

Symptoms of salmonella illness are diarrhea, stomach cramps, vomiting, and fever. This illness, often mistaken for 24-hour flu, is seldom fatal but can be serious for infants, the elderly and chronically ill persons.

Salmonella organisms are found most frequently in raw animal products-meats, poultry and eggs. While refrigeration and freezing retard their growth and cooking destroys them, salmonella organisms multiply rapidly at temperatures between 45 and 114 degrees Fahrenheit.

Contaminated fresh meats do not usually contain salmonella at levels high enough to produce illness. However, they are frequently vehicles that carry salmonella into the kitchen.

This cross-contamination can occur when a knife or cutting board, used to cut raw meat or poultry, is not washed before coming in contact with another food. Once cross-contamination has taken place, salmonella may multiply to hazardous levels if refrigerated in such a large amount that it cools very slowly.

To prevent illness from salmonella:

-Avoid cross-contamination by using hot, soapy water to wash hands, utensils, cutting boards or counter tops that have been in contact with raw meats.

—Do not thaw meats or poultry at room temperature. If it is necessary to speed up the thawing, use cool running water.

-Refrigerate leftovers

Home canning procedures updated to insure safety

By Linda S. Moore Mississippi Cooperative

Extension Service People canning summer vegetables-beginners as well as seasoned veterans—should not assume they know the safest processing times.

Changes in processing times for home canning have been recommended to protect consumers from food spoilage and potentially fatal botulism.

Melissa Mixon, human nutrition specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension duces a deadly toxin.

Certain foods, primarily those with low acidity, can only be processed safely in a pressure canner, she said. Low acid foods are vegetables (excluding pickled vegetables), meats and milk. High acid foods, including tomatoes, pickled fruits and vegetables, jellies, jams and preserves, are not susceptible to botulism.

The nutritionist said botulism toxin is one of the most deadly natural toxins. Symptoms, which include blurred vis-

Service, said just because a certain canning method or processing time has been used safely for years does not make it the safest method.

Everything that goes into a jar must be processed by placing the filled, sealed jar in a pressure canner or submerged in boiling water.

Mixon said clostridium botulinum (botulism) is the organism that should concern most Botulism does not necessarily change the color, smell or taste of the food," Mixon said. "The botulinum spore is very heat stable. Boiling is not enough; only pressure will increase heat to the level to kill botulism spores.'

Mixon said when low acid food is processed improperly, kept at room temperature, with water and an air-free environment, the botulism spore proion, loss of muscle control (paralysis), fatigue, headache, dizziness and inability to swallow, can begin within 12 to 36 hours.

Because the toxin is not as heat resistant as the spore, the normal cooking process (boiling temperature for 20 minutes) will destroy the toxin; Mixon said. A person could still become sick from the spoilage, but the risk of death is not as great when the toxin has been destroyed.

Processing times vary depending on the jar size and the consistency of the food. The center must reach 240 degrees F. and stay at that temperature long enough to kill the botulism

Mixon said although botulism is not a major concern when processing high acid foods, home canners must consider other organisms that might cause spoilage such as mold and Submerging filled jars in

"Processing is confusing even for the consumers trying to keep up with changes," Mixon said. "It's best to consult a county home economist for the most current home canning publication (No. 1152) for accurate processing times. Don't depend on older publications.'

What to choose from the displays of so many kinds of vegetables is often a difficult decision. When possible, make your own selection of perishable produce, keeping in mind your Refreshing tropical pie intended purpose.

Look first for freshness. Choose vegetables that are comparatively dry. Excessive moisture hastens decay.

area for the freshest choices.

Do not buy merely because the price is low. Unless the low price is because of overabundance of the product the socalled "bargain" may be undesirable.

Avoid selections showing excessive deterioration. Frequently, such off-quality stock will be lower in price, but if you waste a lot in preparation you haven't gained anything by getting it at a low price.

Remember, the largest is now always the best quality nor the most economical. They may appear to be bargains but may be entirely unsuited for the purpose.

Distinguish between defects that affect appearance and those that affect edible quality. Higher grade vegetables usually don't have blemishes that are present in lower grades. You can remove many blemishes that are not harmful to the interior quality.

Do not handle vegetables unnecessarily. Rough handling of vegetables in the process of selection causes spoilage and waste for which consumers as a group must pay. When you handle a vegetable to better judge quality or condition, use reasonably thoughtful care to prevent injury.

Even under ideal storage conditions—the right temperature and humidity—most fresh vegetables retain top quality only for a few days.

Green leafy vegetables quickly wilt and change flavor as water evaporates from tissues. Other vegetables—corn, beans and peas lose sweetness within a short time as sugar converts to starch.

Most fresh green vegetables keep well and stay crisp if put in covered containers or plastic bags and stored in the refrigerator. If you wash lettuce, celery and other leafy vegetables before storing, drain thoroughly because too much moisture can hasten decay.

Always sort vegetables before storing. Discard or use, at once, any bruised or soft vegetables; do not store them with sound, firm vegetables.

The nutritive value of vegetables is not measured by their cost or the quantity you bring home, but on the amount that is actually eaten and the nutrients this portion contains.

Factors favorable to conserving nutrients are: 1) rapid harvesting, cooling, packing, transporting and marketing;

2) early consumption chased produce; 3) use of properly co temperatures and h area for the freshest choices. What to choose from the displays of so many kinds of vegetables is often a difficult decision. When possible, make your own selection of perishable produce, keeping in mind your intended purpose.

Look first for freshness. Choose vegetables that are comparatively dry. Excessive moisture hastens decay.

Do not buy merely because the price is low. Unless the low price is because of overabundance of the product the socalled "bargain" may be undesirable.

Avoid selections showing excessive deterioration. Frequently, such off-quality stock will be lower in price, but if you waste a lot in preparation you haven't gained anything by getting it at a low price.

Remember, the largest is now always the best quality nor marketing; the most economical. They may appear to be bargains but may be entirely unsuited for the purpose.

Distinguish between defects that affect appearance and those that affect edible quality. Higher grade vegetables usually don't have blemishes that are present in lower grades. You can remove many blemishes that are not harmful to the interior quality.

Do not handle vegetables unnecessarily. Rough handling of vegetables in the process of selection causes spoilage and waste for which consumers as a group must pay. When you handle a vegetable to better judge quality or condition, use reasonably thoughtful care to prevent injury.

Even under ideal storage conditions—the right temperature and humidity-most fresh vegetables retain top quality only for a few days.

Green leafy vegetables quickly wilt and change flavor as water evaporates from tissues. Other vegetables-corn, beans and peas lose sweetness within a short time as sugar converts to starch.

Most fresh green vegetables keep well and stay crisp if put in covered containers or plastic bags and stored in the refrigerator. If you wash lettuce, celery and other leafy vegetables before storing, drain thoroughly because too much moisture can hasten decay.

Always sort vegetables before storing. Discard or use, at once, any bruised or soft vegetables; do not store them with sound, firm vegetables.

The nutritive value of vegetables is not measured by their cost or the quantity you bring home, but on the amount that is actually eaten and the nutrients this portion contains.

Factors favorable to conserving nutrients are. 1) rapid harvesting, cooling, packing, transporting and 2) early consumption of purchased produce; 3) use of properly controlled temperatures and humidity until the food is served; 4) avoidance of soaking in water; 5) rapid cooking;

6) use of liquids in which vegetables are cooking; 7) conservatism in paring, coring, chopping and mashing.

8) preparing amounts fairly close to what will be consumed so there are not large quantities of leftovers.

Fresh vegetables are at home for most any occasion. The "in" hors d'oeuvres at parties these days are cherry tomatoes, col ery stalks, little green onions. circles of green pepper, sliced fresh mushrooms, carrot sticks. flowerettes of cauliflower and broccoli, and for the brave, brave soul, hot little chili peppers. Try them! You will find that fresh vegetables are nutritious, they taste good and me easy to prepare.

COOKING UP A STORM

> By Katy McGuire Caire

As the temperature soars these summer days, and the mere thought of the kitchen stove makes you even hotter, take the comparatively easy way out, and turn your thoughts to chicken.

It's such versatile and relatively 'short cut' cookery and delicious in so many ways. Sometimes I quickly saute chicken breasts with a bit of lemon and chopped parsley, but more often I saute chicken quarters in oil or butter, or a combination of the two, adding splashes of white wine or sherry, along with lemon slices and other seasonings.

At other times, I like to add chopped fresh tomatoes and chopped green pepers and onions and sliced mushrooms to the basic chicken saute—after all, it doesn't take that much more time to add these embellishments, and they readily add a flair to the finished dish.

And, at times I add green grapes to the chicken-lemonbutter combination at the last minute, or cherries or peaches or avocado slices, just for the fun and the colorful appearance of the dish. For a basic saute, on which you can improvise further touches as you go along,

SHERRY AND LEMON CHICKEN SPECIAL 1 broiler-fryer, 21/2 to 3 lbs.,

1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter or margarine

2/3 to 1 cup sherry 1 lemon, sliced (less, if you don't like as much lemon as I do) Several grindings of the pepper mill, or coarse-ground black

pepper to taste

Melt the butter or margarine, and saute the chicken quarters, browning them nicely, and turning as needed.

Distribute the onion slices atop, dust generously with the pepper, and splash the sherry over it all.

Simmer until the chicken is tender, adding the parsley and a dash of crumbled rosemary, if you wish, and a little water if needed. Add a dash of salt if you

I usually cover the pan as the chicken starts to simmer, removing he cover as needed to reduce the liquid a bit, if necessary. Serve with new potatoes and fresh green beans or pole

Vary this basic chicken saute as you wish-it's such a stretchable and tasty dish, especially when served with or atop a mound of rice, for example. (Four servings.)

Home canning procedures updated to insure safety

By Linda S. Moore Mississippi Cooperative

Extension Service People canning summer vegetables—beginners as well as seasoned veterans—should not assume they know the safest processing times.

Warm weather increases salmonella dangers

The weather is warmer and our activities turn to the outdoors. Picnics and family cookouts become a weekend way of life. The pleasant days, warm temperatures and plenty of food combine to create the perfect breeding ground for salmonella, reminds the Mississippi State Medical Association.

Salmonella is one of the most common foodborne illnesses and is estimated to affect more than one million persons each year.

Symptoms of salmonella illness are diarrhea, stomach cramps, vomiting, and fever. This illness, often mistaken for 24-hour flu, is seldom fatal but can be serious for infants, the elderly and chronically ill

Salmonella organisms are found most frequently in raw animal products—meats, poultry and eggs. While refrigeration and freezing retard their growth and cooking destroys them, salmonella organisms multiply rapidly at tempera-tures between 45 and 114 degrees Fahrenheit.

Contaminated fresh meats do not usually contain salmonella at levels high enough to produce illness. However, they are frequently vehicles that carry salmonella into the kitchen.

This cross-contamination can occur when a knife or cutting board, used to cut raw meat or poultry, is not washed before coming in contact with another food. Once cross-contamination has taken place, salmonella may multiply to hazardous levels if refrigerated in such a large amount that it cools very slowly.

To prevent illness from salmonella:

-Avoid-cross-contamination by using hot, soapy water to wash hands, utensils, cutting boards or counter tops that have been in contact with raw meats.

—Do not thaw meats or poultry at room temperature. If it is necessary to speed up the thaw-

THE SEA COAST ECHO-THURSDAY, JUNE 8, 1989-1B

Time Out

By Dena Bisnette

Part of the fun of keeping up with sports for The Sea Coast Echo is sampling the number of different events

The Bay-Waveland area's extra-long summers and proximity to the Gulf, with exception of some high heat and humidity conditions during which athletes should beware of heat stroke, seem more conducive to development of a greater variety of sports.

One thing I have noticed which encourages, in particular, individual sports such as running and bicycling is the comparatively low amount of traffic we have on some of the downtown and residential streets. I enjoy watching joggers and bicyclists, and even have a few who exercise so regularly I can set my watch by them.

Cycles Plus Bicycle Club invites the public to join in a 25-mile bike ride at 8 a.m. Sunday.

Those who wish to participate should meet at US-90 and Bayview in Pass Christian. Helmets are strongly recommended, and any rider 18 or younger must be accompanied by and adult rider.

For more information, call 467-1706.

A double-elimination, six-man volleyball tournament has been scheduled for Sunday and will be played on the beach near Coleman Avenue in Waveland

The event will benefit the Bay-Waveland Jaycees and entry fee is $30 per team. (No women's competition is included this time.) The winning team will receive T-shirts, with caps being awarded to the second place team. Food and drinks will be available. For more information, call Mike Favre, 467-9776; Rick's Trophies, 467-3237; or Jimmy Ladner, 467-0761.

Only a limited number of entries can be accepted, so

The Bay St. Louis Little League's boys and girls programs will jointly sponsor a youth dance Saturday for ages

The dance begins at 7 p.m. in the Valena C. Jones Gym and continues until 11 p.m. Coaches and parents will act as chaperones for the event, for which music will be provided by D.J. Productions.

Admission is $3. For more information, call 467-2492.

Many hunters and fishermen in this area are also avid conservationists, and may be interested in a workshop regarding what to do with injured and orphaned birds and Wildlife Rehabilitation and Nature Preservation Society, which operates an animal rehabilitation center at Pass Christian, will provide its annual seminar on this topic from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. June 17 at the USM lecture building, Gulf Park Campus, Long Beach.

I have attended one of the past seminars by this group and found it particularly helpful. People call The Sea Coast Echo from time to time, asking where injured wildlife can be taken for help or telling me they have found a young ani-

The workshop fee is $12 and includes a number of handouts, and additional manuals are available.

Don't forget the "Fit or Fat? Youth Fair" Saturday, June 17, at the new walking track at Hancock Medical Center. The event is divided into two segments, 8 a.m. until 10 a.m. for children grades one through six, and 5 p.m. until 7 p.m. for children grades seven through 12.

Included will be a program titled "It's Fun to Keep Fit". nutritional advice, refreshments and weightlifting, as well as appearances by local fitness experts and drug-free bodybuilder Charles Hawkins.

Sponsors include Hancock County Recreation Department, Hancock Medical Center, Health Risk Management, Cardiac Care Associates and Jolly Rogers Printing. For pre-registration or more information, call 467-8077 or University of Southern Alabama Head Coach Roy Patton is offering a camp, "Soccer for Thinkers," June 12-16 at Bay Senior High from 8:30 a.m. until 4 p.m. daily.

Late registration will be accepted Monday. Information and reservations are available from Steve Carver, 467-7669; Roberta Harville, 467-6112; or Kathy Edwards,

Bay Area Youth Soccer will conduct its annual meeting and elections at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at the St. Clare School

Nominees are listed elsewhere in today's edition of The Sea Coast Echo. In addition, all parents, coaches, sponsors and referees are encouraged to attend the meeting, and anyone with equipment to turn in should bring it.

Congratulations to Russell Elliott, who is moving up from director of the Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo to

Elliott to head Deep Sea Rodeo

Longtime director of the Mississippi Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo Russell Elliott will assume the role of president this year.

Elliott has been active in the rodeo organization since its inception 41 years ago and was the first person elected to the Board of Directors outside of Harrison County in 1972.

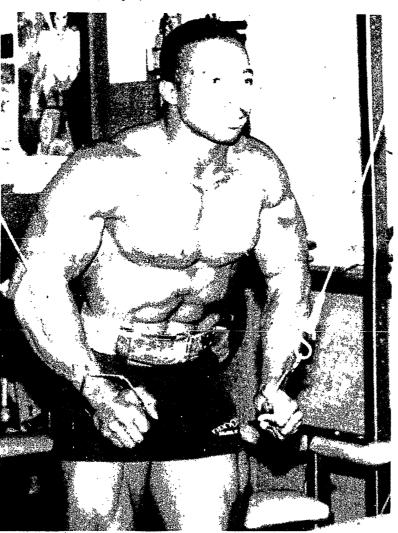

The Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo, which is headquartered at the Rice Pavilion in the Gulfport Small Craft Harbor, is an annual event which attracts thousands of people on the July 4 weekend.

The new president has also served as master of ceremonies, chairman of the stage and entertainment committees and co-chairman of the annual beauty pageant and queen selection committees for the past 12 years. He has also served as secretary of the organization.

The rodeo dates for this summer are June 30, July 1, 2 and 3.

USA soccer coach to hold Bay camp

Coach Roy Patton, head coach for the University of South Alabama soccer team, will again offer his 'Soccer for Thinkers' Day Camp at Bay Senior High School in Bay St. Louis on Coach Patton and his staff of Jacquar team members and other coaches from across the nation offer direction in individual technique drills, indoor and outdoor soccer, tournaments, skill competitions and individual evaluations. There will also be a special goalie workshop offered this year.

Camp hours will be from 8:30 a.m. until 4 p.m. Earlier arrival is permitted, but must be cleared through camp sponsors

Refreshment and shade tents will be available for campers' comfort, and participants should bring a sack lunch. Campers should also bring a soccer ball (well identified) and rubbersoled shoes for indoor activities.

Late registration will be Monday, June 12 at 8 a.m. at the senior high gymnasium lobby.

Anyone needing additional information or who would like to reserve a place in camp should call Steve Carver, 467-7669; Roberta Harville, 467-6112; or Kathy Edwards, 467-5599.

BY DENA BISNETTE

Bay St. Louis American Legion Post 139's baseball team downed Long Beach Senior Babe Ruth in a double header Tuesday night, winning the first game 3-0 and the second Andy Perniciaro, one of the coaches for the team, credited the first game to Cedric Smith. Smith pitched 10 strike-outs and gave up only four hits.

Leading the hitters in the first game were Scott Heitzmann, who hit a two-run homer, and Charlie Mitchell, with a single and a double.

Will Seymour was winning pitcher in the second game, pitching 17 strike-outs and giving up one hit.

Kyle Herrit led the batting with a double and an RBI. Ronald Doyle was credited with four stolen bases and stole home for the go-ahead run.

The team's next game will be Thursday night at 7 p.m. against Ocean Springs at Ocean Springs High School field.

Bay Area Soccer slates election

The Bay Area Youth Soccer annual meeting and election of officers and commissioners will be Sunday, June 11 at 7:30 p.m. at St. Clare School cafeteria.

Officers and commissioners serve a two-year term with offset elections each year. Three commissioners and a vicepresident will be elected this

The nominating committee has submitted the following names for consideration: for vice president, Ronnie LaFontaine and Craig Foster; and for commissioner, Richard Flowers, Steve Carver, Milton Bernard, Eddie Farve, Tom Demboski and Alan Kingston.

Ronnie LaFontaine is the incumbent vice president seeking re-election, and Richard Flowers is an incumbent commissioner seeking re-election.

In addition to the above slate of candidates, anyone interested in being considered for election may submit a petition with at least five BAYS members' signatures to the membership chairman, Timmy Kingston by Friday.

Any coach having league equipment to turn in should also notify Timmy Kingston at 467-9813. All parents, coaches, referees and sponsors are encouraged to attend this annual meeting and anyone interested in coaching next year should attend this meeting.

State hunting seasons set

Summer basketball camps set at USM

Young men who want to learn more about playing basketball may enroll in two summer basketball camps planned at the University of Southern Mississippi.

Nationally recognized USM head basketball coach M. K. Turk and other coaches will lead individualized and team sessions in the June camps.

"We hope to see a first-grade boy progress in his basketball skills each summer to the point where, in his senior year, we can sign him up to play for the Golden Eagles," said Robert McInnis, USM assistant basketball coach.

The June 12-16 camp, for boys entering grades 1-6, will be from 9 a.m.-noon. Young men in grades 7-12 may enroll in a June 26-30 camp.

Both camps will feature night games, highlight films of camper and Metro Conference games, air-conditioned dormitories, planned meals and use of the USM pool and other recreational facilities. The fee for fulltime campers is $185; commu-

Basketball coaching seminar slated

The 14th annual Basketball Coaching Seminar is planned for June 19-23 at the University of Southern Mississippi.

J. Larry Ladner, an assistant professor in the USM Department of Coaching and Sports Administration, will direct Special Athletic Problems: Basketball (CSA 672). The in-depth study and analysis is designed to enhance basketball coaching skills and knowledge.

Coaches who wish to receive three hours of graduate credit will be required to complete an outside project by July 7.

The changes were recommended by members of a May live-bait workshop conducted by the DWC's Bureau of Marine Resources staff. The workshops included representatives of the live-bait industry, BMR staff biologists and law enforcement

Among the proposed changes is a regulation which would require live-bait dealers to post a $1,000 cash bond when purchasing a live-bait license to be allowed to trawl in the upper

The proposal would require that the bond be forfeited upon a live-bait dealer's conviction of a fishing violation. The violator would not be allowed to trawl in the bays until he posts another

Scott Gordon, BMR acting chief of fisheries, said the bond will be a more effective measure of protecting the marine life nursery areas in the bays.

Now violations of live-bait laws are punishable by a $100-$500 fine, Gordon said, adding that judges hand out few maximum fines to violators.

The state Commission on Wildlife Conservation on Wednesday ordered the bureau to conduct the public hearings. The commission is not obligated to approve the workshop recommendations.

Snyder said the purpose of areas without having to close the areas entirely.

The proposal, if approved by the commission, would establish the area north of a line running one-half mile from the shoreline along the coast as a permanent nursery-staging area. No commercial shrimping other than live baiting would be allowed inside the half-mile

Now, the area inside the halfmile limit may be opened or closed upon the recommendation of the Bureau of Marine Resources.

Toledo Bend Reservoir, the 180,000-acre freshwater ocean along the Texas-Louisiana border, probably ranks as the most famous bass lake in America, and although the impoundment has celebrated its 20th birthday, the Big T continues to produce outstanding catches of

Here are some thoughts on fishing the lake by a former guide there. Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff member Larry Nixon Now living in Arkansas, Nixon first traveled to Toledo Bend in 1972 to spend a few weeks guiding to earn money for college. He found the fishing so good he staved for 16 years

"In these days Toledo Bend was undoubtedly the first lake in America it you wanted to learn about hass patterns and fishing techniques," Nixon plan your fishing for one of remembers "I cause the lake these areas because it's just too had so many bass you could go that to run from one end to the practically at white at Leater

Today, the lake has changed but the opportunities for catching a lot of bass still remain.

Toledo can be divided into three distinct sections," says Nixon, "and each has its own individual characteristics

"The upper third of the lake contains a lot of flooded brush and flats with water five to 12 feet deep. The water is more dingy. The lower third of the lake has deeper, clearer water. Some wide open bays, and a lot of hydrilla

"The mid-section of the lake is simply a combination of these, blending shallow flats ath some deeper structure There is hydrilla, too, and the water grad fally begins to clear

Taylor poem among works in children's collection

BY D.C. HARVILL

Bay Catholic fourth grader Sarah Taylor has accomplished something scores of her seniors only dream of doing. She has been published in a national publication.

Taylor's poem Bubbles was selected from among more than 12,000 entries for publication in The Rainbow Collection, an anthology of poems and stories by young people. Proceeds from sale of the book will benefit Ronald McDonald Children's Charities. Sarah is a daughter of State Senator Gene and Margaret

Taylor of Bay St. Louis. The poem was written by Taylor for an assignment in a handwriting class taught by Martha Merrigan. Without telling Taylor, Merrigan submitted it to a competition sponsored by the Young Writer's Contest Foundation to chose works for inclusion in the anthology.

"We didn't know about it until we got a telegram telling us she had won," Sarah's mother said.

Sarah's name, along with those of the other winners, appeared in the March 6 issue of USA Today. She is the only winner from Mississippi

Sarah said she has kept a diary continually since kindergarten, she said.

According to her mother, Sarah writes alot of poems about nature. She also likes to paint and has begun illustrating her
